There are employed by the railroads of this country, in some capacity, 1,017,653 men.

The Steel Trust has advanced the price of steel billets $2 a ton. Starting to get back some of the money lost by the strike.

Some editor has suggested that in place of making trouble-talk Emma Goldman should have busied herself putting up preserves. Pickles he meant. Nothing sweet in her.

If President Roosevelt's family don't lodge around with the neighbors we'll have to build an annex to the White House. There are only five sleeping rooms in it, including the company room.

A Washington report says that President Roosevelt will oppose any effort to reduce Southern representation, which some of the Republican statesmen of the North have been threatening.

A Washington dispatch says when Congress meets the other Senators will ignore Wellington, of Maryland. Wellington is a small man. The biggest thing about him is his name, and that doesn't fit.

The Republican papers of Pennsylvania are lauding the efforts of some Democrats in that State to organize a new Democratic party. The State really needs is a new party with some of the best of the present party eliminated.

A Utica, N. Y., man who recently died, left $21,000 to be divided among his third cousins, then defined cousins as "children of those who are related to me as cousins." Thus far only 870 "third cousins" have put in a claim for a part of that $21,000 and they are represented by only 48 lawyers.

The remains of Abraham Lincoln have been removed eleven times and will shortly be removed again for the twelfth, and we are told the last time. The last place is a grave fifteen feet deep, beneath the vault where they now lie, which will be covered with an iron cage built into the solid masonry. Can it be that they fear that the handful of ashes remaining might be stolen?

That "surrender tree" at Santiago is a very remarkable tree. There have been made from it as souvenirs 100 tables, 72 chairs, 154 work boxes, 11 desks, 288 knife handles, 288 cigar cases, 1,200 umbrella handles and 10,000 penholders, and the old tree is growing right along and flourishing as if a toothpick had not been wrenched from it.

THE CARNIVAL WEEK.

PUBLIC COMFORT COMMITTEE

Hotels and Boarding Houses Are Asked for Rates and Accommodations—Some of Many Features of Bostock-Ferari Company.

Two weeks from to-morrow and the Elks' Fair and Carnival will be upon the city in all its splendor and brilliancy. The past week has found anxious committees rounding up details and laying plans and making arrangements for even greater things than were at first dreamed of.

The sole question now is to take care of the crowds when they get here, and that important pre-arrangement is well being made by an enterprising "Public Comfort Committee" with Mr. C. C. Chadbourn at its head. In order that every emergency may be met, Mr. Chadbourn asks all those who can find a home for one or a dozen of the visitors upon this occasion to communicate with him at once, signifying location, rate, etc.

Superiority of the attractions that will be here for both the townspeople and visitors has never been questioned. It is quite enough to tell informed folks that a majority of the attractions will be by the Bostock-Ferari people, who are known the world over. Numbers of the several attractions have already been spoken of in these columns.

An exhibition without which no midway would be complete will have just representation at the fair, the world renowned Streets of Nations. This exhibition with its quaint people from the Orient and camels of the desert constitutes one of the special attractions of the famous Bostock-Ferari Company, and its features are exceptionally good from the fact that it is devoid of all objectionable items generally found in an entertainment of this character. The principal feature is the famous Funkino troupe of Japanese. The feats performed by these people are truly marvellous, especially the foot balancing and wire walking. In addition to these people are seen gun-spinners, whirling Dervishis, wrestlers, sword fighters who are all headliners in their particular work. In connection with the Streets of Nations will be found the Turkish theatre headed by La Belle Ameena, the original Algerian dancer of the world's fair, Chicago, and her troupe of dancing girls. This feature of the show is well worth a visit and may be visited by everybody with perfect propriety.

Another attraction which has caused quite a sensation wherever seen is the Electric Theatre, where are presented the beautiful fire dance, also the skirt dance. The special feature of this show is the Chameleon Lady, so named from the beautiful and marvellous effects that are thrown upon a white satin cape worn by the young lady while giving this remarkable exhibition. The colored calcium effects are up to the standard rarely seen in the most prominent theatres in the country and carried by no other travelling organizations but the Bostock-Ferari company.

Moving pictures kept up-to-date are always an interesting exhibition for both old and young. The Bostock-Ferari company carry all the latest pictures by that wizard of electricity, Edison, the special features now being presented being Queen Victoria's funeral and the remarkable exploits of Carrie Nation in Kansas. In addition to the above are presented the original pictures of the great Galveston disaster, scenes in the assassination of President McKinley and pictures of Cinderilla for the little people.

Another great feature for all classes is the Woodford dog and monkey circus. In this exhibition some of the cleverest animal acts ever presented to the public are witnessed. Mrs. Murphy, the famous monkey, in living pictures is a feature that will want to be seen by all wishing to see something out of the ordinary in dog and monkey circuses. The great feature of this show is the giant baboon riding and guiding a bicycle just as well as it can be handled by the ordinary human being, the climax to this feature is a ride down the inclined stairway by the baboon, imitating the famous ride down the Capitol steps at Washington, D. C., on his bicycle.

A great feature with the Bostock-Ferari company is the Ferris wheel. This wheel contributes to the amusement of great crowds of people by carrying them around again and again to a height of fifty feet in the air; this becomes so fascinating that a great many people continue to ride over many times before giving up the wheel.

Besides the above the company carries Esau, the snake-eater; Trip to the Moon and several other first class attractions. Any person visiting any one of the shows can depend upon seeing a first class exhibition and realizing full value for their money.

Additional subscriptions to the Carnival fund have been received as follows: J. L. Boatwright Co., W. B. Cooper, T. J. Gore, J. Allen Taylor, W. A. Sanders, A. S. Heide, R. N. Sweet, J. F. Garrell & Co., N. F. Parker, A. Mavronichols, LeGwin Printing Co., Sol. Bear & Co., Sam. Bear, Sr., Davis & Guion, W. A. Vollers, W. C. VonGlahn, J. H. Boatwright & Son, H. J. Bennett, Willard Bag Manufacturing Co., Robinson & King, J. T. Riley, Chadbourn Lumber Co., D. McEachern, J. H. Watters, Cooper & Cooper Co., D. L. Gore Company and Wilmington Street Railway Co.

THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Outline of the Year's Plans as Decided Upon by the Board of Directors Friday Night.

EDITOR STAR—Please allow me space in your columns to lay before interested friends report of meeting of the board of directors, held Friday evening. Plans for the Winter were decided upon as follows:

Educational Department—Class in book-keeping and penmanship, class "Short-hand and Typewriting," and business course, comprising grammar, composition, spelling, arithmetic and business forms. These classes to be held twice a week. Drawing, free hand, mechanical, architectural, taught by a graduate draftsman. Commercial Law, in charge of one of our prominent lawyers. This class is designed for merchants, book-keepers and young men. Vocal class by one of our prominent music teachers. First Aid to the Injured, taught by our physical director. These classes will be held once a week.

Athletic Department — Class for business men three evenings in week. Class for young men three nights in week. Junior class three afternoons in week, under the instruction of our physical director.

Religious Department — Sunday morning Bible class for men, conducted by General Secretary. Saturday morning Bible class for juniors, conducted by Assistant Secretary. Thursday night Bible class for workers conducted by a city pastor. Gospel service Sabbath afternoon for men. This will give us twenty-two classes with not less than two hundred men each week, under capable instructors for earnest young men endeavoring to improve themselves intellectually, physically and spiritually.

Improvements—The board further decided to relight, repaint and repair the gymnasium, bath and dressing rooms, and that these departments, therefore, be closed from October 1st to 14th in order that they may be in proper shape for the opening of the classes. The junior room will also be repapered, fitted up with games, proper reading matter and walls hung with pictures suitable for this department. Parlor will be put in thorough repair, furniture and room. The reading room has lately had added to it sixty-five dollars worth of periodicals and magazines, and in its enlarged quarters makes a very attractive and home-like place.

All of the classes will start October 14th and continue for six months. The cost of each has been placed as low as possible in order to be in reach of the needy man. It is desired that those contemplating enrolling with any of the classes will enter their names in office as soon as possible in order that classes will not be delayed in their work.

The physical department has been fitted out with necessary instruments for testing a man physically as to lungs, heart and muscle, and strict account will be kept of each man and proper instructions will be given him to develop the weakened portions of his body. The general secretary is expected in about a week's time.

Thanking you for this kindness, I remain, Yours, very respectfully,
WM. L. LATTA, President.

DEATH OF M. H BEARDSLEY.

Well Known Young Man Passed Away Yesterday Morning at His Home.

Yesterday morning at 5 o'clock, at his home, No. 405 Queen street, Mr. Moses H. Beardsley, a well known young business man of Wilmington, passed away after an eight weeks illness with typhoid malaria fever.

Mr. Beardsley was born in Farmville, N. C., December 19th, 1875, and was therefore in the 26th year of his age. For some time he has resided in Wilmington, where had a position as salesman with the Singer Sewing Machine Company, of which his brother, Mr. D. M. Beardsley, is manager. He also has another brother, Mr. E. J. Beardsley, employed in the same office, and leaves a wife and two children to mourn their loss.

BURGLARY AND HOUSE-BREAKING.

Jim Sanders, Colored, Arrested On Telegram From Mullins, S. C.

Upon telegraphic advices from Mullins, S. C., Chief of Police Furlong yesterday arrested Jim Sanders, colored, charged with housebreaking and burglary. The telegram did not give particulars of the crime but an officer will likely be here to day to arrange for the transfer of the negro for trial to South Carolina.

Sanders was captured by the Wilmington police on an extra cotton train, which reached the city about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The officers were in wait for the negro at the station and he was taken into custody without resistance. His home is here and he confessed his identity but not the offence with which he is charged.

Chief Furlong thinks that in the arrest he has the man who entered Warren's Bakery a few nights ago, smashed a cash register and departed with about $15 in merchandise and money.

THE COTTON SEASON.

SHORTAGE OF 50,000 BALES.

Season Known to be Late, But the Staple is Coming In Phenomenally Slow. Several Steamships Are Now in Port for Cargoes.

Continued falling off in port receipts of cotton from last year gives rise to the belief, now freely expressed in commercial circles, that the crop in Wilmington's territory is going to be even smaller than at first was supposed. While the season this year is known to be at least two weeks later than last year, this condition is said by authorities on the subject not to account on the whole for the phenomenally small receipts of the month of September about to close, as compared with the same month last year.

The receipts at Wilmington the past week have been only 5,890 bales, against 18,349 bales on the same week in 1900. The receipts since September 1st have been only 11,928 bales, whereas up to the same date last year 61,977 bales had been marketed in September. The falling off in the month alone is a little more than 50,000 bales. The shortage, however, is not confined to Wilmington alone. Raleigh has suffered in the ratio of one to five; Charlotte, Charleston and other ports have also shown a marked falling off since last year.

Up to this period last year four big ocean steamers had been sent with cotton to foreign ports, while this year only one small cargo has been cleared, and there appears to be no immediate prospect for another. There are now in port five tramp steamers, at least three of which are for cotton cargoes, and two more arrived yesterday, making the total number in port seven.

THE MOORE DAMAGE SUIT.

Large Number of Attorneys and Witnesses Interested in Case Come Up From Southport Last Night

On the steamer Wilmington, which arrived at 7:15 o'clock last night, were a large number of Wilmington attorneys, witnesses and others, who are in attendance upon the hearing of the Moore damage suit in the Superior Court at Southport. Among the number were Messrs. Marsden Bellamy, Jno. H. Gore, Jr., George Rountree, E. K. Bryan, Jno. D. Bellamy, D. L. Russell, Dr. Chas. Baskerville, chemist at the University of North Carolina; Prof. W. A. Withers, chemist at the A. & M. College; Mr. Rigsbee, an acid chamber builder of New York, and others.

Attorneys say it will require every day of the present week to get the case to the jury. The plaintiff has 70 odd witnesses and the defendand has almost as many. Only about a dozen of the plaintiff's witnesses have been examined thus far. Among the number were F. M. Moore, Superintendent Hilburn, Prof Withers, George H. Bellamy, A. M. Sue, Mike Hilburn, Tom Reynolds, A. M. Rowell and C. W. Reiger.

Dr. Baskerville is an expert witness as a chemist for the Navassa Company and will return Wednesday to give his testimony. The case is the most interesting, perhaps, in the history of Brunswick county.

COMING THEATRE SEASON.

"East Lynne" Thursday Evening and "Thelma Later"—Field's Minstrels.

East Lynne—A revival of "East Lynne" is always looked forward to with great interest, even if presented by an inferior company, but when it becomes known that this popular play is to be produced by a company chosen for this one piece and no other, and with a leading actress as star, it becomes the theatrical event of the season. Miss Leah Lessi and her own company will present her version of "East Lynne," at the Opera House next Thursday, October 3rd. Miss Lessi will be supported by Mr. W. St. Clair and Sir Francis Levison. The Virginia-Pilot of September 26th, says:

Miss Leah Lessi and her supporting company presented "East Lynne" at the academy yesterday, matinee and night, to fair sized audiences. Miss Lessi's interpretation of the dual role of Lady Isabel and Madame Vine is quite different from that of any other actress seen in Norfolk and was very pleasing. The production was good."

Thelma—Chas. W. Chase's splendid production of "Thelma" comes to the Opera House Monday October 7th. The widespread popularity of the novel by this name is sure to arouse great interest in this, it's first stage production.

Al G. Field's Greater Minstrels—Oct. 9th comes the ever popular Field's Minstrels. The company this season numbers fifty people and is said to be the greatest company Mr. Field has ever gotten together.

Atlantic Coast Line Taxes.

Yesterday the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company settled its State, county and city taxes for the current year. The company is easily the heaviest tax payer in New Hanover. The amount to the State and county is $4,087.86 and that paid to the city is $4,685.98.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY A DESPERADO.

Officer Chadwick Severely Wounded Last Night After a Terrible Encounter With an Unknown Man.

While attempting to arrest an unknown white man, who was firing into the house of a woman on Fifth between Dawson and Wright streets last night about 8:30 o'clock, Policeman E. R. Chadwick, one of the bravest and most popular officers on the force, was shot in the right shoulder and received other injuries about the face, neck and shoulder that will incapacitate him for several weeks.

At the time mentioned, Mr. Chadwick was attracted by the firing of the unknown man and hurried to the scene to ascertain the cause. As he was approaching the man turned the fire on the officer, but Mr. Chadwick was undaunted and pressed on. When in a few feet of the man, he saw him aim and "ducked" his head to escape the ball, but it took effect in the upper part of his right shoulder blade and ranged downward about eight inches. Even though shot, the officer pressed on and grappled with the man, who used the butt of his pistol on the officer's face, fracturing his nose at the bridge and badly contusing his face, scalp and shoulder in a number of places. In the meantime the officer was using his club to the best advantage, but exhausted at length from the loss of blood and having his club wrested from him, his assailant escaped, but not until the officer had fired at him several times without effect.

After the fray Policeman Chadwick found his way to Mr. Geo. Burnett's store, Fifth and Wright streets, and telephoned to the station for assistance. Chief Furlong, Sergeant Burnett and Policeman Wood responded and the officer was transferred to the City Hall and temporarily treated by Dr. Andrew H. Harriss who had been summoned. Later he was taken to the James Walker Memorial Hospital and Dr. Harriss and Dr. Thos. R. Little extracted the bullet—a 38 calibre—from between the lower end of the shoulder blade and spine. The broken nose and other wounds were also dressed, and the injured officer is resting well. Dr. Harriss says the wounds are very painful but not dangerous.

The police are working faithfully to accomplish the arrest of their comrade's assailant and think they have a clue. Policeman Chadwick, on account of the very desperate encounter and darkness of the night, is unable to say whether the man was a bright mulatto or a white man. A few hours after the shooting Sergeant Burnett arrested Charlie Fisher, an albino, of bad reputation, who may be the guilty party. He was apparently drunk, and was down at Third and Wright streets when arrested, but he has bruises about the face, neck and shoulders which give evidence that they were inflicted by a policeman's club. He is locked up at the station house.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

WILMINGTON, N. C., September 28th, 1901.

To the Citizens of Wilmington and the County of New Hanover:

The Board of Managers of the James Walker Memorial Hospital beg to announce that the new Hospital, which was donated to the city and county by the late James Walker, has been completed and delivered to the Board of Managers.

Ample provision has been made by the city and county authorities for the support and maintenance of the Hospital. Before its usefulness can be realized, it must be furnished and equipped; and this duty is among the first that has devolved upon the Board of Managers in assuming charge of the property. A careful estimate has been made and it is ascertained that it will require at least six thousand dollars to properly furnish and equip the Hospital. An appeal is now made to the citizens of the city and county to supply this amount. It having been suggested that many private citizens would desire to make contributions towards this purpose, the Board has decided to open subscription lists in order that an opportunity may be afforded to those who desire to do so, to contribute. These subscription lists are in the hands of Dr. C. P. Bolles, the Secretary of the Board, at the office of Messrs. Hugh MacRae & Co., Bankers, and it is hoped that liberal contributions will be promptly made. It has been decided that, in order to have the Hospital uniformly and properly equipped, the same must be done under the supervision of the Board of Managers, and that, on this account, the contributions must be in cash.

W. G. ELLIOTT, President of the Board.

The Morning Star.

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, SEPT. 29.

WHAT WILL THE ISSUES BE?

There are certain fundamental principles upon which all great political parties are or should be based. In addition to these issues will arise from time to time, which will be espoused or opposed by the respective parties, and these are what the fighting is over. These issues change. They either become the recognized and established, or may be abandoned either temporarily or permanently and new issues take their place.

Not to speak of issues that divided parties previous to 1860, there have been a dozen or more issues since over which the parties have fought with all the vigor and determination there was in them. Now there are scarcely any of these issues left, and yet the leading parties maintain their organization, and are ready to battle with each other, as if the destinies of the country hung on the outcome. Parties being composed of men must, like men, meet the present, adapt themselves to the conditions which confront them and either assert or combat the issues which arise and affect the welfare of the people, while still adhering to the fundamental principles which may have ceased to be causes for contention. As no man can see into the future and say what the issues will be that he may be supporting four, six or eight years hence, so neither can any party say what issues it will be supporting four, six or eight years hence, because parties do not make issues, but issues make parties.

In 1896 the free coinage of silver was the great issue which appealed to the voters of the country, and stirred them with such earnestness and activity as was rarely witness before. In 1900, although the Democratic party which had espoused and advocated the free coinage of silver did not abandon it, it was less of an issue than it was in 1896. It was subordinated to what was the more immediate issue, the policy of forcible possession of the Philipinos, which was characterized as "imperialism." But as time, circumstances and the verdict at the polls temporarily at least have relegated the silver question, so time, circumstances, the verdict of the people, the surrender of the Filipinos and their apparent acceptance of American sovereignty and acquiescence in the government established over them, have temporarily at least relegated the issue of "imperialism" so that two of the great and exciting issues that have been fought over within the past few years, have ceased to be the factors they were.

The Democratic party believes as strongly in the free coinage of silver as it ever did, and it is as strongly opposed to "imperialism" as it ever was, but being practical it adapts itself to conditions that present themselves and refuses to fight windmills just for the sake of fighting, when there may be something else in which the country is more interested to fight for.

Eliminating for the time being the money question and our insular policy there is nothing as far as present indications point to divide parties but economic questions connected with the tariff and trusts and it is in the power of the Republican leaders to minimize these if they dare to meet the tariff question and the trust question with honesty and courage. If they do that they can snatch both of these issues from the Democratic party and force us to fight on general principles, unless some new issue present itself between this and the time for holding the conventions in 1904.

There will be no proscriptive sectional legislation to make issue on that line, for the common sense of the country is against that and the disposition of the great body of the American people is to look more to the future than to the past.

If Representative Babcock, of Wisconsin, find backing enough in Congress to carry out his programme against the trusts by repealing the protective duties on the articles they ship abroad and sell for less than these same articles are sold for at home, that will go a long way towards managing the tariff and trusts as polititical issues. Very few outside of the Republican party have any idea that a Republican Congress will in good faith attack either the tariff or the trusts, but if the majority in this Congress should surprise the public by doing that it would deprive the Democratic party of two of its prospective issues. Whether they will do this or simply play with the tariff and the trusts remains to be seen, but realizing the changed attitude of the people, especially in the West, on these subjects, they may be less squeamish in dealing with them, especially if President Roosevelt should take a positive stand and favor legislation to restrain monopolies, on which he expressed himself somewhat frankly in his Minneapolis speech.

But neither he nor the Congressmen of his party will go far enough to eliminate the trust as an issue in the next contest, for it is a many-sided question and in our opinion paramount to all the other issues which now divide the parties. It is not a question of whether capitalists shall combine to work to greater advantage, nor whether they charge more for the products of their establishments, and thus levy unreasonable and unjustifiable tribute upon the American people. It is more than that, something more far-reaching and vital, something in which every wage-earner in the land, present or future, is or may be vitally interested. Simmer it down, and it is simply a question whether the man or the dollar is to rule, whether the few with combined capital are to master and the millions who toil for bread are to bow submissively and helplessly to that rule. It is useless to say or contend that these colossal combines have nothing more than trade significance. They are mighty, soulless factors, which can and will control State and national legislation in their own interest, and thus practically control both State and nation.

There may be others, but this, in our opinion, will be the great issue in the next national contest.

OBJECTING IN ADVANCE.

When the reciprocity matter comes up for discussion in Congress there will be strong opposition to it, which will not be confined either to political or sectional lines. The opposition will come from the protected interests which would be, or think they would be, injured by no duty or a low rate of duty on the articles they produce. This will be the case with nearly every treaty that is submitted. The hosiery manufacturers and the wine makers will fight reciprocity with France just as the cigar tobacco growers, cane and sugar beet growers and sugar manufacturers will fight reciprocity with Cuba. This will make the fight an interesting one, the more interesting because the fighting will be less on political lines than usual, and one between the people on one side and the protected interests on the other.

The Jacksonville, Florida, Times-Union and Citizen is a Democratic paper, but when it comes to protecting Florida industries, present or prospective, it gets in line with the protectionists of the North who want protection on wool, iron, steel and the countless other things they are interested in producing, and kicks in advance against reciprocity with Cuba, thus:

"President Roosevelt announces the intention of negotiating a reciprocity treaty with Cuba, by which sugar and tobacco will be admitted to the United States free or at a reduced import duty, while Cuba will make concessions on cereals and machinery exported from the United States.

"Considered from a local standpoint, such an agreement would be very objectionable. The tobacco industry of Florida would be badly hurt. If the agreement should also include cigars, as is probable, Florida's chief manufacturing industry would be injured. Florida is not yet a great sugar producing State, but her adaptability to such production is not surpassed by that of any other State in the Union, and it is reasonably certain that in a few years she would become a great sugar producing State, if present conditions were left undisturbed.

"There might be some compensation to Florida if the increased trade between the United States and Cuba should pass through Florida ports, but very little of it would. Sugar would go by water to New York rather than by rail, and the same is true to a very great extent of tobacco. No appreciable amount of the exports of cereals or machinery would be made through Florida ports.

"But this argument appeals only to Floridians. Viewed from another standpoint, such a treaty would be objectionable to all sections of the Union. It would entail a great loss of revenue that is cheaply collected. There is much more of revenue than of protection in the tariffs on sugar and tobacco. This would be lost if these tariffs were repealed, and the Americans would find no corresponding gain. It would be a great thing for Cuba, for the Cubans would make almost to the extent that the treasury lost in revenue. The loss by admitting Cuban sugar free could be almost exactly computed, but the loss on tobacco could be estimated so accurately, because of the different rates on the different grades, or on the material in its various stages of approach to the finished product. It is safe to say, however, that on the two the loss of revenue would amount to not less than $30,000,000 per annum, not in the interests of the people of the United States, but entirely in the interests of the people of Cuba. Then, if the tariff on tobacco or tobacco products were abolished or reduced, a corresponding reduction in the internal revenue taxes would be necessary, which would probably run the total loss above $40,000,000 per annum.

The grain growers would not be materially benefitted, for they already sell Cuba practically all the grain imported to the island. The manufacturers of machinery would not be greatly benefitted, for American machinery is already sold all over the world. Such an agreement would confer all its benefits on the Cubans, and would take from the American Government a large part of its revenue."

We print this entire because it foreshadows the line of opposition which will be adopted when reciprocity with Cuba comes up for consideration, when the contention will be made that Cuba will be the only gainer by reciprocity, that this country will gain nothing but lose many millions of revenue, while they will entirely ignore the fact that the people of this country would get cheaper sugar, other cheaper things which we import from Cuba, which would in the aggregate amount to much more than the revenue lost, even if free trade were adopted, not to speak of increased sales of American products to the Cubans.

EGYPTIAN COTTON.

For some time the United States Department of Agriculture has been making experiments on the experimental farm near Phœnix, Arizona, in the growing of Egyptian cotton. These experiments have been so satisfactory that the belief is now established that this cotton can be successfully grown on large acres of Arizona and New Mexico, where the conditions of climate and soil are are similar to those of Egypt, where the cotton is grown, and from that grown at the experiment station this year and be planted next year on a number of farms in Arizona and New Mexico, and will thus have a pretty fair test.

This is a matter of importance not only to cotton planters in that section, but to the cotton manufacturers of this country, for they import annually about $5,000,000 worth of this cotton for special uses, to which it is adapted on account of its long, strong fibre and glossy appearance. In length of fibre and fineness it ranks next to our Sea Island cotton.

We suppose that much of the land on which it will be grown in Arizona and New Mexico will be irrigated land, which will make the crop a more reliable and abundant one than if grown under entirely natural conditions and therefore liable to injury by excessive rains or excessive droughts.

Some people are never satisfied to let well enough alone. Three men are in jail in a Missouri town because they stole a lot of hides from a tannery, took them back and sold them to the tanner, repeated the performance, and not satisfied with that, tried it for the third time, and got caught. They didn't have as good luck as the Federal soldier at the surrender had in Greensboro, when he sold a mule to a citizen, stole the mule and sold it again to the same man as a match for the first mule, and then stole the mule and rode off.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— If President Roosevelt is going to be as great a reciprocitist as was the late President McKinley, and the late President did not get the co-operation of his party in following out of his policy, it takes no keenness of vision to see that the new President will have to develop greater powers than his predecessor if he is to keep his party in line with him.—Mobile Register, Dem.

—— President Roosevelt has been saying some very kind things about the South, and as blood is thicker than water he doubtless feels most kindly towards the people of this section. But the South asks no favors at his hands. It simply asks and demands that the States of the South be treated as the States of other sections are treated, without prejudice or favoritism. The Southern States are parts of the Union, and they simply ask that the President will treat them as such.—Richmond Times, Dem.

—— Miss Emma Goldman, just released from jail says she has promised to write for three magazines and journals, but otherwise her path is clear. That notoriety should continue to afford a surer guarantee for acceptance of articles by some magazines than meritorious work seems to be a fact, though an unpleasant one. The public so far has only the authority of Miss Goldman for the statement that she will contribute to magazines and journals, but the statement is a likely one, and it seems useless to hope it is not true.—Baltimore Herald, Rep.

NO SHADOW

Of outward misfortune can darken the smile of the loyal wife and loving mother. But when disease comes the smile slowly fades, and in its place comes the drawn face and tight closed lips which tell of the constant struggle with pain.

When the delicate womanly organism is diseased the whole body suffers; the form grows thin, and the complexion dull. The first step to sound health is to cure the diseases which undermine the womanly strength.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. The wonderful cures of womanly diseases effected by the use of "Favorite Prescription" place it at the front of all put-up medicines specially prepared for the use of women.

"I was troubled with female weakness for eight years, and suffered more than I can tell," writes Mrs. Gust. Moser, of Ovando, Deerlodge Co., Montana. "My disposition was affected to such an extent that to say a pleasant word to any one was almost an impossibility.

"I had two operations performed by one of the most skilled surgeons of the West, but did not get relief. Then, against my doctor's strict orders, I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also followed the advice given in the Common Sense Medical Adviser.

"I continued this treatment for three months, and so-day am as healthy and well as a woman can be. I cannot thank Dr. Pierce enough for his kind letters to me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Tarboro Southerner: In all the complaints about cotton that one hears not one has reached this office that the "top" crop is short. Several farmers have been heard to say that the "top" crop was large. One reports this crop so heavy as to bend the stalks over.

— Lumberton Argus: Mr. G. F. Allen, of Brompton, can boast of having the largest oak tree that the writer ever saw. The tree stands on the edge of his yard and makes a large shade. The top will measure 100 feet across either way from tip to tip, though the trunk is very short. It is about six feet through.

Charlotte News: Professional burglars entered the store of the Charlotte Hardware Company on the railroad and East Trade street Thursday night and secured from three hundred to one thousand dollars worth of pistols, razors and knives. The store was closed up last night as usual about seven o'clock.

— Monroe Enquirer: Mr. J. D. Williams, of Goose Creek township, died suddenly last Monday. He was apparently well and was at work when he fell. Mr. Williams was seventy-four years old. —— The dwelling, barn and corn crib on Mr. E. A. Armfield's farm at Armfield's mill, in Buford township, were destroyed by fire last Sunday at noon The dwelling was occupied by Mr. W. A. Plyler and family and they were away from home when the fire occurred. The burning was evidently the work of an incendiary, as one of Mr. Plyler's neighbors informs us that the house was robbed before it was burned. Nothing was saved from the dwelling.

— Sanford Express: Great preparations are being made for the opening of the season at Pinehurst, Mr. Tuft's famous Winter resort. The Carolina is being enlarged. More than a thousand people were turned away from that resort last Winter on account of the hotels being full. It is said that there was one gentleman who spent last season there whose expenses, with his dogs, horses and waiters, amounted to the sum of $1,500 per week. —— There are two drug stores in Moore county run by ladies—one at Southern Pines and Pinebluff. The one at Southern Pines is owned and run by the Misses Johnson, who were born and reared in this county. The one at Pinebluff is run by Miss Elizabeth Packard, a Northern lady.

— Statesville Landmark: The past season has been a fine one for pears, notwithstanding the excessive rainfall damaged most fruit. Mr. S. O. Eazenby, of Cool Spring, brought us this week a small sprig of a pear tree on which there was a cluster of six large, fine pears of the Idaho variety. The pears were grouped closely and the unusual cluster attracted attention. —— Gov. Aycock has offered a reward of $400 for the arrest of Pleas McDaniel, charged with criminally assaulting a nine year old white girl in this county August 31st. Elsewhere is told the story of the search made for McDaniel by Sheriff Wycuff and Deputy Sheriff Deaton. The sheriff returned home yesterday. The officers think that McDaniel will be captured.

— Dr. Buckley wisely observes that "if men were to prepare themselves rather than their sermons, the sermons would, to a great extent, take care of themselves." There is food for thought in this. Time given to prayer by one who is preparing a sermon is never wasted, but is always productive of good fruits.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

We have handled Dr. Moffett's TEETHINA (Teething Powders) ever since its first introduction to the public and trade as a proprietary medicine, and our trade in it has steadily increased from year to year until our orders now amount to two or three hundred gross per year which is a very strong evidence of its merit and the country, for they say that nothing so effectually counteracts the effects of the summer's hot sun or overcomes so quickly the troubles incident to teething.

BLIND.

This much I know. Before the sky grew dark,
When died the sunlight like a candle blown
And left my soul to strain and grope and hark,
A captive, locked in some black tower alone;

Before the curtain fell that shut me out
From all I had been—all I hoped to be—
There was a glad green world, a joyous shout
Of strong winds blowing o'er a laughing sea.

Any there were green-gold fields of heading wheat
That ran and rippled in the passing breeze;
And there were frail pink roses, wild and sweet;
And there were mist-blue hills and tossing trees;

And over all, a brooding blue,
Where martins circled in the sunset light,
And where the crying killdees flashed and flew
And great stars shot their glory through the night.

All this I know. And for the power divine
To dream such pictures on the midnight walls
Of this unwindowed prison tomb of mine,
I bless the Hand from which the blessing falls.

I am content, O God, content to know
The sky still shines above my sightless eyes
That though my feet down darkened pathways go,
Unseen, the Brightness round me lies.

BILL WAS TOO SMART.

Farmer's Son Who Thought He'd Have Fun With an Elephant.

"My son Bill," said the old farmer, "was just too smart fur anything. I had a big red bull who used to git loose once in awhile and lick everything in the state, and Bill was ready to bet his last cent on that critter. One day when a circus procession was comin up the road Bill come runnin from the barnyard and says:

"'Dad, I'm goin to let that bull out.'

"'Fur why?' says I.

"'Fur to see him bev fun with the elephant.'

"'Don't you do nuthin of the kind. The elephant would break his back in a holy minit.'

"'Never, dad—never! Our bull will roar one roar, dive one dive, and he'll tumble that behemoth into the ditch and then upset the band wagon. Dad, it's the chance of our life to see a heap of fun.'

"Waal, now," drawled the old man, "Bill said so much that I told him to go ahead. Mebbe that bull smelt them three elephants a mile away, fur when he was let out he was ready fur a row. He pawed and bellered and worked his mad up, and when the elephants finally come along he selected the biggest of the three and made fur him. One of the circus men called out fur us to take our critter away, but we was lettin him take keer of hisself jest then. With a beller and a rush he was upon the elephant, but things didn't happen as Bill had planned 'em. Say, now, but that big beast met our bull head on and knocked him flat, and then he got his trunk under him and flung him into a swamp and never even looked back at him. We went down to see our bull, and he had tears in his eyes, a broken leg and one horn gone. I looks at Bill, and Bill looks at me, and bimeby I says:

"'Bill, this critter cost me $40 in cash.'

"'Don't say a word, dad,' he says as he sits down, with a big sigh. 'I thought I was the smartest feller in this county, but I was foolin myself. I'll work three months fur $15 a month and pay fur the bull, and if I'm ever fool 'nuff to back up ag'in another elephant may somebody kill me with a crowbar!'"—Chicago News.

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Peruna is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy---I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN. A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D.C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy." Very respectfully, Dan. A. Grosvenor.

Hon. John Williams, County Commissioner of 517 West Second street, Duluth, Minn., says the following in regard to Peruna: "As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I know what it is to suffer from that terrible disease and I feel that it is my duty to speak a good word for the tonic that brought me immediate relief. Peruna cured me of a bad case of catarrh and I know it will cure any other sufferer from that disease."

Miss Mattie L. Guild, President Illinois Young People's Christian Temperance Union, in a recent letter from Chicago, Ill., says:

"I doubt if Peruna has a rival in all the remedies recommended to-day for catarrh of the system. A remedy that will cure catarh of the stomach will cure the same condition of the mucous membrane anywhere. I have found it the best remedy I have ever tried for catarrh, and believing it worthy my endorsement I gladly accord it."

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, orator of Reservoir Connell No. 168, Northwestern Legion of Honor, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes from 2?? Polk street, N. E.:

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, Minneapolis, Minn.

"I have been troubled all my life with catarrh in my head. I took Peruna for about three months, and now think I am permanently cured. I believe that for catarrh in all its forms Peruna is the medicine of the age. It cures when all other remedies fail. I can heartily recommend Peruna as a catarrh remedy"

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systemic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

For a free book containing valuable advice on the causes and treatment of catarrh, address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The cotton market opened quiet, with prices seven points higher to one point lower, and immediately after the call developed pronounced strength and fair activity on bad weather and crop reports. Shorts were the leading buyers all the early session, though old time bulls constantly supported the market. The South, Europe and Wall street also bought in our pit. Disappointing Liverpool cables were counter influenced by reports of heavy rains over the eastern half of the belt, light receipts, deterioration of the crop in nearly all the section and a healthy bullish Chronicle review of the week. By 10:30 A. M. January ranged between 7 81 and 7.82. The market for futures closed barely steady, with prices seven points higher to three points lower, having weakened in the last hour under heavy Southern selling, said to be for McFadden account.

SOME VICIOUS ANTS.

SPECIES THAT HAVE NEARLY EVERY BAD TRAIT OF HUMANITY.

They Are Lazy, Greedy, Tyrannous and Covetous—Some That Reduce Their Captives to Slavery and Put Them to Queer Uses.

Science is, after all, your real iconoclast. Not content with toppling the busy little bee off her pinnacle of virtues, it goes on to attack the ant, for so long held a pattern and moral of thrift.

Ants, say the wise men, have about every bad trait of humanity—they are lazy, greedy, tyrannous, given to conquests and coveting the territory of their neighbors. Along with the territory they oftener than not take the neighbors themselves, holding them ever after in slavery.

Just how this comes to pass is something of a puzzle. There are seven hundred odd species of ants duly classified.

Several of these species, say observers, must possess hypnotic power, since they attack, subjugate and reduce to slavery other species which are much bigger, stronger and more populous in the nests.

After they have got their slaves many other queer things happen. The slaves in some nests are classified—so many told off as soldiers to defend the gates, so many for domestic duties, foraging, the care of eggs, and so on. The soldier ants are further subdivided. The larger number, by constant exercise, develop fierce nipping jaws and poison stings. The others in some curious fashion increase the size of their heads, especially if they happen to be considerably bigger than their masters. The big heads enable tuem to block a passageway against an invading foe.

Exceptionally elastic slaves are transformed into living honey bottles. They are found with abdomens enormously distended and full of the honey dew the working slaves bring in. Honey dew, be it said, is a secretion of the aphides, or plant lice, which the ant swarms keep in herds within the nest.

Ants are passionately fond of honey—indeed, of all sweet juices. They are, further, fond of mushrooms and grow them within their nests. They also cultivate certain species of orchids and bring about distinct modifications of the plant form, stinging the young tender stems so fiercely that they will become almost globular and distill a thin semisaccharine juice, which the ants no doubt regard as rare wine. One particular species of orchid, indeed, is so infested with a virulent stinging ant that the collection of it is very dangerous. The minute the plant is touched all the ants swarming over it rush to the point of attack. That is, however, less curious than the fact that the orchid will not flourish without the ants, but withers away after a feeble, straggling year's growth.

Some few among slaveholding ants remain capable. The most part become utterly demoralized. They cannot build nests, care for their young, or even feed themselves. Not a few, when the slaves have chosen and built a new nest, ride to it upon a slave's back. One species is noteworthy for having only slaves for workers, yet never containing within the nests any slave eggs or young.

As with bees, the queen ant is the mother of the swarm. Unlike bees, however, there are often several queens in the same swarm. The workers are rudimentary females. In slavemaking the victors kill all the perfect ants and take home the others.

Perfect males and females have wings, which they drop as soon as the marriage flight is over. Worker ants have no wings. Worker ants, or, rather slaves, and the aphis cows by no means exhaust the list of ant dependents. They keep various smaller insects as men keep domestic animals. Just why is not yet clear. The fact remains, though, that in the crannies of some nests herds of a thousand almost invisible small creatures have been found.

A year is the average span of ant life, but some species live five years and exceptional individuals as much as seven. All species show the liveliest concern for their eggs, lugging them up into sunshine upon fair days and scuttling back with them the minute the sky is overcast. Upon a fickle April day the eggs may be moved a half dozen times. They are nearly as regardful of the aphis eggs. Indeed, throughout they protect their milk kine, shelter them well and take pains in rearing their young.

Hospitality is not unknown among ants. A stranger guest receives distinguished consideration. But woe to the stranger ant that comes uninvited. He is hustled and pummeled and finally hurt mortally unless he saves himself by showing superior fighting power or possessing a clean pair of heels. After he is down a mere squirming trunk, bereft of legs, unable to bite, the slaves lay hold on him and drag him outside the nest to die. Possibly it is an ant superstition that bad luck follows a stranger's death in the house.

Formic acid, the distinctive ant product, is one of the greatest vegetable stimulants known. The earth of a nest becomes so saturated with it that some people explain the famous Hindoo mango trick by supposing that the mango seed which comes to flower and fruit before your eyes is planted in a pot of ant heap earth.

However that may be, it is established beyond cavil that ants of some species cultivate and presumably fertilize their favorite food stuffs. Cases in point are the trimmer ants and the harvesting ants, both of which abound in the state of Texas. The trimmers prune a sort of weed which is to their taste so that it shall grow strong and sturdy. The harvesting ants go even beyond that. They clear disks several yards across roundabout their nests of all manner of vegetation, then plant the disks with ant rice, which they watch and tend until it ripens, letting no vagrant or alien twig show its head.—New York Sun.

THE WIRE NAIL INDUSTRY.

A German Catholic Priest Founded It In America.

It was in Covington, Ky., that the first wire nails were made in America. In 1875 Father Goebel was pastor in charge of St. Augustine's Catholic church in that city.

Before he came to this country from Germany he had seen Frenchmen and Germans hammering nails out of wire. When he had established himself in the ministry at Covington, he opened a forge in an old outbuilding standing in a brickyard. He started the making of wire nails, first by hand, and gradually one improvement after another came to his mind and was carried out until the nails made were more useful and could be made more cheaply. Soon after he began he improved upon the old nail by cutting barbs in its sides, and by this they were made to hold more firmly. Then to accelerate his work he made a die, into which he slipped the wire, that had been cut to proper lengths, and while resting on these dies the head was pounded on the nail. On an anvil he hammered on the point, and the barbs were cut in the sides by hand. It was the nail that is made today, but the production was so expensive that it was impracticable for ordinary use.

It was about this time that the French introduced a machine that would do what Goebel was doing by hand, and as soon as the latter heard of it he imported one of these machines. The introduction of this machine was the real beginning of the wire nail industry in this country on a large scale. It was a queer machine when it was received, but the principle was right, and the great machines that today turn out hundreds of thousands of nails a day are constructed on identically the same plan. It was operated by hand, and the speed was 60 nails a minute. Goebel attached a flywheel, geared it to steam and by other improvements increased the machine's speed to double this capacity, which was as many as 20 or 30 men working by hand could produce. This was the "single header" machine, making one nail at each stroke, and this machine produces with its present improvements as high as 415 nails a minute, while the double headers, producing two nails at a stroke, turn out from 550 to 600 a minute, or a total of 30,000 an hour.—Chicago Record.

THE MODERN TYPEWRITER.

Some of the Ingenious Schemes From Which It Has Evolved.

"The history of the typewriter would make a volume full of intense human interest," said an expert who was recently in the city. "There is no other mechanical appliance in the world upon which so much diversified inventive genius has been lavished and so many strange and cranky ideas advanced. When you know that over 300 different kinds of typewriters have been constructed and abandoned since the date of the first experiment, and over 100 are in use now, you can form some conception of the magnitude of the problem and the activity of the inventors.

"Many of those queer early models bear no resemblance to any variety of machine familiar to us today. One of them was half as large as an ordinary piano and weighed 600 pounds. It did pretty fair work, by the way, if the operator wasn't pressed for time, and is now preserved as a curiosity in the office of one of the big firms in the north.

"Another strange specimen was made like a globe—in fact, I think it was called 'The Writing Globe'—and had the type raised on its surface. It swung around on a universal joint, and a very ingenious contrivance stopped and depressed it at exactly the proper place over the paper. It worked perfectly, but it was impossible to write more than two or three words a minute on it, and how the inventor could possibly have imagined it would ever be a practical success is something I am unable to understand.

"Nearly all the modern typewriters now on the market are evolutions, rather than inventions. They have been gradually built up and perfected and are the fruit of scores of brains. I call one machine to mind in which fully 200 patents of different kinds are incorporated. One small part, that could be held in the palm of the hand, has been changed and improved a dozen times since the first model came out of the shop.

"Most of these inventions are made by the workmen at the benches, and the company buys and develops them. As a rule they are small, and the mechanic gets from $5 to $50 for his idea, but occasionally some bright fellow stumbles on to something much more valuable. One big hit in that line was a device for cutting typewriter type from a continuous roll of wire. It was designed by a young chap in one of the large manufactories, and his own firm paid him $40,000 in cash for the exclusive rights. He has quit work since and set up an automobile."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

LONG ISLAND SMITHS.

So Numerous That They Sometimes Need Labels to Distinguish Them.

A good story is told at the expense of the Long Island Smiths by a census enumerator. Years ago, before so many new settlers had come in, he fell into the habit of asking at each place he stopped the name of the next householder beyond and invariably met with the response, "Smith."

"Bless me!" said he at length to a long, lank old inhabitant. "Are you all Smiths down here?"

"I'll tell you how 'tis, squire," said the old man. "There is a pretty considerable lot of us Smiths on the island and no mistake. There was Tangier Smith, that the British government thought so well of they gave him a grant of pretty much all the present town of Brookhaven. Then there was Bull Smith, who made a swap with the Indians of a few beads and red coats for all the land his brindle bull Sam could trot round in a day. One family of us is known as the John Rock Smiths, because its ancestor used a big bowlder for the rear wall of his house. Another line is called the Jonathan Black Smiths because its ancestor was as dark complected as an Indian. Still another family is known as the Block Smiths, from the fact that their founder had a big horse block before his door, and another as the Weight Smiths, because their ancestor owned the first set of weights and measures in the settlement.

"But, bless you, we're nothing as bad off as they were in Patchogue a few years ago. There were actually five William Smiths living there at one time, not a mile apart either. But the people got around that too. One of them owned a peacock, the only one of the five that did, and he became 'Peacock Bill' Smith. Another invented an improved kind of wheelbarrow with three wheels, and he was known all his days as 'Wheelbarrow Bill' Smith. The third lived on a point projecting into the bay, and he was called 'Point Bill.' A fourth was a famous diver, and he was called 'Submarine Bill,' and the fifth was aliers called 'Eleven Dollar Bill' for this reason:

"He was clerking in a store, and when one day a woman gave him a two dollar bill to pay for her trading he gave her back $10.50 in change. The boss got on to it, and he said he mistook the two Roman numerals II in a corner for the figure 11."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Less than 400 years ago in Christian England it was a crime even to read the English Bible, and it was punished with fine and imprisonment or worse.

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache, and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only fifty cents, at R. R. BELLAMY's Drug Store. THE LATEST AS TO NERVES AND STRENGTH

It is not muscle so much as the nerves back of muscle which show one's strength and power of endurance. And the study with able physicians of to-day is how to keep the nerves in perfect health and fitted for the strain of everyday living. Headache of every type, nerve weakness, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, languor, restlessness, nervous dyspepsia, muscular weakness, brain weariness, poor circulation,—a thousand different unpleasant feelings and symptoms are due to nerve waste and nerve weakness,—especially in women and children. But how can all this be prevented, one will ask? How can my broken-down constitution be repaired, and nerve strength and full, robust health be secured. Just two points to remember: Determine that you will grow strong in nerves and health, and decide to use at once that most famous nerve cure, COCELIN. It is delicious in taste, quick in action and makes the wearied nerves tingle with renewed strength and every function the stronger and faculty the brighter by its use. Druggists sell it.

M'CALLA ON THE WITNESS STAND.

THE BLOCKADE ESTABLISHED

Schley's Fleet Had Never to His Knowledge Been Withdrawn to Any Distance From the Harbor—Lieutenant Barnes Testifies.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—In the Schley court of inquiry to-day Captain McCalla, of the Marblehead, concluded his testimony which was begun yesterday and the court heard the testimony of Lieutenant Commander W. H. Southerland, who commanded the Eagle during the Spanish war and also that of Lieutenant Cassius B. Barnes. Mr. Stayton did not press his request to be allowed to appear as counsel for Admiral Sampson as he announced that he would do. He wrote a second letter to the court renewing his application, and recounting the times that the admiral's name had been brought into the case, but he left the city later in the day, requesting the court to hold up the matter for the present.

When Captain McCalla took the witness stand Mr. Hanna asked him: "Were any ships assigned to the duty of engaging the batteries on the morning of May 31st, 1898, or during that day, or to the duty of enfilading the batteries?"

The reply was: "None that I know of."

"Did the battleships go within range of the Colon?"

"Not from my observation."

"Were you so situated as to observe the fall of shots from the fleet?"

"I was."

"Where did they fall?"

"I think I saw every shot fired. They all fell short that I saw. One very nearly reached the Colon."

Conference on the Brooklyn.

The witness described a conference of commanding officers on the Brooklyn on May 29th. "The commanding officers were ordered on board the Brooklyn on May 30th. It was with regard to the work of blockade. I can only remember one specific thing which took place at the close, and that was that Captain Evans asked Commodore Schley if the Spanish ships came out if he was going in for them. He said 'certainly,' and then arranged for a sub-division of fire from the ships under his command on the Spanish ships should they come out."

Mr. Hanna—"Prior to that conference on May 29th had you at any time received definite instructions respecting the order of battle or the mode of procedure which the fleet should follow in case the Spanish vessels should suddenly appear."

"I do not remember."

"Did you have any further conversation with Commodore Schley?"

"I had a conversation with him in his cabin after the battle of Santiago, about July 5th, in Guantanamo bay. I went on board making an official call to pay my respects, and during the visit Commodore Schley read to me what I understood to be a part of his official report of the battle. After he had finished I said, 'Commodore, you remember that after the battle of Lake Erie there was an unfortunate controversy, and I hope that there will be none after the battle of Santiago, because there was glory enough for everybody.'"

The Blockade of Santiago.

Relating the particulars of the blockade of Santiago before June 1, Captain McCalla said the Marblehead and the Vixen had at night occupied positions inside the large ships about two miles from the shore line and that that line was easily discernable.

Referring to the fact that he had informed Captain Chadwick, Admiral Sampson's chief of staff, of the code of signals arranged for communicating with the insurgent Cubans, he said that he did not in anyway communicate with the commander-in-chief.

Mr. Rayner then asked: "According to the regular custom and regulations observed in cases of that sort was it not your purpose that this communication should go to the commander-in-chief through his chief of staff?" "Certainly," was the reply.

The witness said further that he thought it had been common knowledge at Key West after his arrival there on May 19th, that the Cuban insurgents were on the coast near Cienfuegos, but that no information was given concerning the secret code. He had, he said, failed to give the code to Commodore Schley when he passed him, when the commodore was bound for that port.

"If I had thought that he was going to Cienfuegos," he said, "I would have gone alongside and given him my information."

Absolutely False.

Replying to a question, Captain McCalla said Commodore Schley's fleet, while off Santiago, had never to his knowledge been withdrawn to any distance from the harbor of Santiago. "Then," said Captain Parker, "that story, by whomsoever told, is absolutely false."

"I object," shouted Captain Lemly in a voice as sharp as a pistol shot. "The objection is sustained," said Admiral Dewey, the question is highly improper."

"Did you on any occasion see the large vessels of the blockading force at or near daybreak between the 28th and 31st day of May?"

"I saw them every morning. I could see them at night, too, because there was some moonlight."

"How far were they from the Marblehead and how far was she from the entrance to Santiago?"

"I judge we were two miles inside of the large ships. We steamed up and down. Sometimes we were nearer the entrance than at others. I judge we were certainly two miles and perhaps three miles inside of the large ships."

"At what distance from the mouth of the harbor were the Massachusetts, the Iowa and the New Orleans during the firing on May 31st?"

"I can only judge from the effect of their projectiles. I judge they must have been from the Colon about five miles."

Lieutenant Commander Southerland.

Lieutenant Commander W. H. H. Southerland, who commanded the Eagle, said that he had first fallen in with the flying squadron on May 19th. He had then, under Captain McCalla's orders, undertaken to communicate to Commodore Schley his information concerning the situation at Cienfuegos and had given this information to the Scorpion for the commodore, his message being as follows:

"We left Cienfuegos on the night of the 16th, at which time we learned from the insurgents that the only vessels inside the harbor were two gunboats and several cannonieros."

When the court re-convened for the afternoon session Captain Lemly read the agreement between himself and counsel for Admiral Schley as to the portion of the logs of certain vessels to be printed

The Cruise to Santiago.

Describing the cruise from Cienfuegos to Santiago Commander Southerland said that from May 24th to the afternoon of May 25th the Eagle had made very bad weather. This was due to the fact that the sea had a "long roll," which was very trying to the yacht, as the vessel was then one third full of water.

"A little after 1 o'clock of the 26th when about thirty-five miles from Santiago," he said, "I was called alongside the flagship and the commodore directed me to go to Port Antonio for coal and to report rough weather south of Cuba. My answer substantially was that I already had three days coal, as much as the Marblehead, meaning as much in proportion. The commodore told me that I had not coal enough for his purpose and directed me to carry out his orders. I then asked him again very earnestly to let the Eagle remain with the fleet and coal from the collier. He very courteously replied to me that he either very much regretted or else was very sorry he could not let me do so, as the Eagle had not coal enough for his purpose, and again directed me to proceed, which I did after communicating with my division commander."

Commodore Schley's Dispatch.

Lieutenant Barnes was called and testified that he is on duty in the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department. He was shown the cipher dispatch book of the Harvard, by which vessel Commodore Schley's dispatch was sent to Kingston to be forwarded to Washington. He added that last night and this morning he had made a translation of this message and that it was practically the same as the department's first translation. The cipher copy received at the department, he said, was identical with the original cipher filed at Kingston.

Mr. Rayner then said the original Schley dispatch was translated into cipher aboard the Harvard. That cipher came to Washington and he had no doubt the department's translation was correct.

Mr. Rayner in his cross-examination brought out the fact that Lieutenant Barnes had no knowledge whether the cipher copy made on the Harvard is a correct reproduction of the original Schley message. The whereabouts of this message is unknown.

The witness was then excused and the court at 3.30 P. M. adjourned until Monday.

SPECTACLES FOR ANIMALS.

Horses May Wear Them For Special Purposes, but Not to Aid Vision.

In response to an inquiry an optician said that he had never known himself of any animals wearing spectacles, but he had read of a horse in London that had been provided with a pair of spectacles, which, the account said, "the horse seemed to find delight in wearing." He had no reason to doubt that this was a true story, though certainly the statement that the horse seemed to find delight in wearing the spectacles did seem a little florid.

As a general proposition the fitting of any sort of spectacles to the eyes of any wearer would require the exercise of intelligence on the part of the wearer as an aid in the fitting. Intelligent assistance would be given by the human animal, man. But this could not be expected of horses and dogs.

Some defects of vision in their eyes might be determined without the aid of the subject examined, but intelligent cooperation in the fitting could not be had in their case even if it were desirable for them to wear spectacles or practicable for them to do so. At any rate, he had never himself known of an animal that did wear spectacles or of spectacles being made for animals.

A veterinary surgeon said that he had never heard of a horse wearing spectacles, though it would not be impossible to provide them if that were desirable.

Horses sometimes wear over the eyes blinders with colored glasses. These are intended to prevent the horse from discerning shadows. Such blinders are sometimes put on trotting horses in races.

There are trotters that shy or break at the shadow on the track of the wire over it marking the starting and finishing point, or at the shadow of a building or of some projecting point of one, just as they would at a pool of water or some actual object on the track. A skip or a break might mean enough distance lost to lose the race. These blinders are used so that the horse won't see the shadows.

There are also put on trotting horses sometimes for the same purpose leather blinders so made and adjusted that the horse can look out over them and upward, but not downward over them to the earth in front of him. Some thoroughbred horses shy at mud or sand thrown in their eyes by horses ahead of them, and for these there are sometimes provided what are in effect spectacles, blinders covering the eyes for their protection, but having glasses of ordinary glass.

Horses and dogs were sometimes provided with glass eyes to improve their appearance.—New York Sun.

A SOLDIER'S THOUGHTS.

It Wasn't the Pursuing Bullets That Worried Him.

Winston Spencer Churchill, who was war correspondent during the campaign in Africa, says that once, in the interests of the London Post, he promised to follow the scouts for a day. The English had made a rapid advance into the heart of the Boer position, disturbing and alarming their adversaries, who attempted to outflank the outflanking cavalry, and rode into the open to make for a white stone kopje on the British right.

"Sir," he asked, "may we cut them off? I think we can just do it."

The scouts pricked up their ears. The general reflected.

"All right," he said. "You may try."

It was a race from the beginning. They reached the kopje to find a squad of Boers there before them.

"Too late!" said the British leader steadily. "Back to the other kopje! Gallop!"

"Then," says Mr. Churchill, "the musketry crashed out, and the swish and whir of bullets filled the air. I dismounted. Now I put my foot into the stirrup. The horse, terrified at the firing, plunged wildly. The saddle turned, and the animal broke away.

"Most of the scouts were already 200 yards off. I was alone, on foot, at the closest range, a mile from cover of any kind. I turned and ran for my life from the Boer marksmen, and I thought as I ran, 'Here at last I take it.'

"Suddenly as I fled I saw a scout. He came from the left across my track, a tall man on a pale horse. 'Give me a stirrup!' I shouted.

"To my surprise he stopped at once.

"'Yes,' he said shortly.

"In a moment I found myself behind him on the saddle. Then we rode. I put my arms about him to catch a grip of the mane. My hand dabbled in blood. The horse was hard hit; but, like a gallant beast, he extended himself nobly. The pursuing bullets piped and whistled overhead, but the range was growing longer.

"'Don't be frightened,' said my rescuer. 'They won't hit you.' Then he groaned. 'My poor horse! Oh, my poor horse! Shot with an explosive bullet! Oh, my poor horse!'

"'Never mind,' said; 'you have saved my life.'

"'Ah,' he rejoined, 'but it's the horse I'm thinking about!'

"That was the whole of our conversation."

The wagon tongue says never a word, but it gets there ahead of the rest of the outfit. It might be well for some people to make a note of this.—Chicago News.

COLUMBIA BEAT THE SHAMROCK.

She Crossed the Finish Line Two Hundred Yards Ahead of Her Rival.

IT WAS A CLOSE CONTEST.

Yachts Evenly Matched—For Miles They Ran Almost Beam to Beam as If Harnessed Together — Next Race Will be Sailed Tuesday.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—In the closest and most soul-stirring race ever sailed for the old America's cup the white flyer Columbia to-day beat the British challenger over a windward and leeward course of thirty nautical miles by the narrow, heart breaking margin of thirty-nine seconds. As Lipton's latest aspirant for cup honors must allow the defender forty three seconds on acount of the extra 833 square feet of canvas in her sail area, the official record under the rules, gives her the victory by one minute and twenty-two seconds. As a spectacle, the contest was superb. From the time the two sky-scraping racers crossed the starting line until they fled across the finish line, four and a half hours later, the result was in doubt, and the excitement aboard the excursion fleet increased until men became frenzied and women almost hysterical. So evenly matched were these two scientific racing machines that never after they started were the rival skippers out of each other's hail and more than three-quarter of the time they were so close that Charlie Barr, who had the tiller aboard the American, could have tossed a biscuit to Captain Sycamore on the Shamrock.

Ready for the Race.

When the two yachts were towed out to Sandy Hook lightship there was a fine strong breeze blowing nine knots from a little south of east with a possible promise of becoming more southerly as the day progressed. The wind had freshened a bit when the tug Navigator, with the regatta committee aboard, anchored at the southeasterly end of the line with Sandy Hook lightship forming the other extremity. Soon afterwards, signals were hoisted on the committee tug denoting that the course would be east by south, fifteen miles to windward and return. The preparatory gun was fired at 10:45. The Columbia had secured meanwhile a birth to windward of the line, while the Shamrock was curveting about at a considerable distance to leeward. Captain Sycamore was at her tiller, down on the leeward side as usual. On the Columbia Skipper Barr was at the wheel. The force of the wind was now fully nine knots an hour. It was sometimes puffy and occasionally reached the dimensions of a scupper breeze, when the yachts heeled to its strength. The warning gun was fired at 10:55, and at that time both yachts had worked to windward of the line, with the Shamrock now in the weather position. At the warning signal both yachts bore down and came to leeward.

Shamrock Ahead.

At 10:58 the Columbia went on the starboard tack, this manœuvre being repeated by her rival. The Shamrock luffed up to windward of the Columbia, and when the starting gun came had a splendid position and went over the line two seconds ahead of her rival and well placed in the windward berth. For once the doughty Charlie Barr had met his equal in the starting trick. Columbia tried in vain to work out through the lee of her opponent Several short tacks were taken, but in spite of all her efforts she could not get clear. At 11:40 the Shamrock had a good lead of nearly three hundred yards When the vessels were on the port tack they encountered a pretty hard head sea. While on the starboard tack the sea smote them abeam. The Shamrock appeared to splash more against the nose enders than the Columbia, but the splashing did not retard her speed in the least. Not a tremor could be detected in the luffs of the sails of either racer. Both were handled to perfection and were given a good clean full, not the least quiver being allowed to make itself manifest in a single cloth.

Still in the Lead.

At 12:54 both boats on the port tack were heading for the outer mark which on this occasion was the tug Edgar F. Luckenbach, the raft which she carried having failed to right itself when put overboard. The wind now was the freshest of the day. The Shamrock had a lead of at least four hundred yards and as she approached the mark it was seen that she had handily beaten the old defender in the windward work. She turned in excellent style and with main boom square off to port the spinnaker boom was lowered to starboard. The Columbia made an equally good turn. The official time at the mark was as follows: Shamrock, 1:25.12; Columbia, 1:25.53.

The Shamrock in the beat to windward had thus gained thirty-nine seconds. She had beaten the Columbia boat for boat, but had not overcome the handicap of 43 seconds time allowance which under the rules of the New York Yacht Club she was compelled to concede. There was considerable delay in setting spinnakers. The Shamrock waited apparently for the Columbia and luffing out in order to prevent a blanket. Finally at 1:32 the Columbia broke out her spinnaker and at the same time a tremendous balloon jib. Shamrock smartly followed suit.

Columbia Crawls Up.

In the heavy roll of the sea which was now on the port quarter of the two boats the main booms trailed in the water as they lurched to leeward. These were tauted up clear of the sea, thereby spoiling somewhat the set of the mainsails. The stern chase is a long chase, but slowly the old Columbia crawled up on the new Shamrock. At 2:10 she was a beam abaft, a minute later was the leading boat. Slowly she crept and at 2:14 was all of half a length ahead. From that time on to the finish line she kept in the lead. The wind was now dropping but in spite of her much larger sail plan the Shamrock could not prevent the steady though slow gain of the Columbia. For nearly an hour the race continued without further event. Then, at 3:15 the wind freshened slightly, filling out the immense sails of the Shamrock. Slowly she crept up and lessened the gap between her and the defender. Now she was only half a length behind. Now she was very nearly on even terms, and it became a matter of doubt as to which boat would first cross the finish line, less than a mile away. It was the last of the many exciting moments in the contest for very soon the Columbia getting her wind free again pulled out and with surprising rapidity opened up on the challenger and pulled out a lead that left the result no longer in doubt. She crossed the line a winner not only on time allowance, but boat for boat.

The next race will be over a triangular course ten miles to a leg, and will be sailed next Tuesday.

Lipton Not Discouraged.

When it was all over, Sir Thomas Lipton showed himself the thorough sportsman he is. "Well," he said, as he stood on the deck of the Erin, "that's one against us. But in my own heart I am just as hopeful as I was this morning, for I feel that if I only have a wind I'm all right. It was a fair and square race—no fluke, but it was not Shamrock's day. We want a breeze that will put that deck six inches under water, and then you will see a race. But, be sure of one thing, I was licked fairly to-day."

Captain Bob Wring, who was on board the Erin at Sir Thomas' elbow, said: "If we get a fresh breeze we will lift the cup yet. A nine to twelve knot breeze is what we want."

"Measuring Party" Thursday Evening.

A "Measuring Party" under the auspices of the N. N. S. Society of Fifth Street M. E. Church will be given in the lecture room of the building Thursday evening, October 3rd, at 8:30 o'clock. A splendid programme of music has been arranged and refreshments will be served. The committee in charge is composed of Miss Mamie McGirt (chairman), Misses Kate Sholar, Maggie Howell, J. S. Williams and D. K. LeGwin.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAYTI, Sept. 28, via Haytian cable.—The occurrences at Jeremie are without any importance. The nine men arrested there were released to-day. The situation in the interior is perfectly tranquil.

Ask Your Physician

When a good physician prescribes beer for a patient it is Schlitz beer. A physician knows the value of purity.

Ask him how germs affect beer and he will tell you that few stomachs can digest them. He will say at once that impure beer is unhealthful.

You will know then why we brew under such rigid precautions — why we even filter the air that touches it; why we filter the beer, then sterilize every bottle.

If you knew what we know and what your physician knows about beer, you, too, would insist on Schlitz.
